A Voice from the Tomb of Abraham Lincoln.

The Detroit Post reproduces from the speeches of the martyr President the following eloquent and timely paragraphs. They mark clearer than anything else the great issue which is still before the American people for their decision, and are ready to be read and re-read by every man who is interested in the permanent welfare of our common country:

"These communities, (the thirteen colonies) by their representatives in old Independence Hall, said to the world of men: 'We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.' This was their majestic interpretation of the economy of the universe. This was their lofty, wise and noble understanding of the justice of the creator to his his creatures, to the whole great family of man. In their enlightened belief, nothing stamped with divine image and likeness was sent into the world to be trodden on, and degraded, and imbruted by its fellows. They grasped not only the race of men then living, but they reached forward and seized upon the farthest posterity. They created a beacon to guide their children and their children's children, and the countless myriads who should inhabit the earth in other ages. Wise statesmen as they were, they knew the tendency of posterity to breed tyrants, and so they established these self-evident truths, that when, in the distant future, some man, SOME FACTION, some interest, should set up the doctrine that none but rich men, or none but white men, or none but Anglo-Saxon white men, were entitled to life, liberty, and the pursuits of happiness, their posterity might look up again to the Declaration of Independence, and to take courage to renew the battle which their fathers began; so that truth and JUSTICE, and MERCY, and all the humane and Christian virtues, might not be extinguished from the land; so that no man hereafter dare to LIMIT and circumscribe the great principles upon which the temple of liberty was being built. Now, my countrymen, if you have been taught doctrines conflicting with the great land-marks of the Declaration of Independence; if you have listened to suggestions which would take away its grandeur, and mutilate the fair symmetry of its proportions; if you have inclined to believe that ALL MEN are not created equal in those inalienable rights enunciated by our charter of liberty—let me entreat you to come back; return to the fountain whose waters spring close by the blood of the Revolution. Think nothing of me; take no thought of the political fate of any man whomsoever; but come back to the truths that are in the Declaration of Independence."

In another speech, especially appropriate at this time, Mr. Lincoln uttered the following thrilling eloquent warning and advice to his countrymen:

"Many free countries have lost their liberties, and ours may lose hers; but if she shall, may it be my proudest plume, not that I was the last to desert her, but that I never deserted her! I know that the great volcano at Washington, aroused and directed by THE EVIL SPIRIT THAT REIGNS THERE, is belching forth the lava of political corruption in a current broad and deep, which is sweeping with frightful velocity over the whole length and breadth of the land, bidding fair to leave unscathed no green spot or living thing; while on its bosom are riding, like demons on the waves of hell, the imps of the evil spirit, and fiendishly torturing and taunting all those who dare resist its destroying course with the hopelessness of their efforts; and knowing this I cannot deny that all this may be swept away. Broken by it I may be; bow to it I never will. The probability that we may fall in the struggle ought not to deter us from the support of a cause which we deem to be just. It shall not deter me. If ever I feel the soul within me expand to those dimensions not wholly unworthy the Almighty architect, it is when I contemplate the cause of my country, deserted by all the world beside, and I, standing alone, hurling defiance at her victorious oppressors. And here, without contemplating consequences before high heaven, and in the face of the whole world, I swear ETERNAL FIDELITY TO THE JUST CAUSE, as I deem it, of the land of my life, my liberty and my love. And who that thinks with me will not adopt the oath I take? Let none falter who thinks he is right, and we may succeed. But if, after all, we shall fail, be it so. We shall have the consolation of saying to our consciences, and to the departed shades of our country's freedom, that course approved by our judgments and offered by our hearts, in disaster, in chains, in torture, in death, WE never faltered in defending."

Can any patriot read these burning words and not feel his resolution braced up, and his faith strengthened, never, under any circumstances, nor for any reason, no matter what trusted leader may fall, or comrade may desert, never to abandon the good cause "approved by his judgment and adored by his heart"—never to give up the fight for Truth, Justice and Mercy, or consent that they shall be extinguished in the land, or expunged from the laws, or prevented from becoming its sure foundation in the Constitution, where we now seek to place them?

GOT ENOUGH.—The Chico Courant, which has been persistently "my policy," throws up the sponge by addressing A. J. the following "Open Letter:"

We have stood by the policy you adopted when you assumed the Presidential Chair, Andy Johnson, because we believed and still believe that policy correct, humane, wise and right. It was the policy adopted by the lamented Lincoln, and subscribed to by the people, and only opposed by a handful of disorganizing ultraists. We still stand by that policy. We have stood by you, personally, Andy Johnson, and defended you to the best of our ability, notwithstanding the many unwise, and we might say, foolish things, said and done, and the many times you swung around the circle in going to the grave of the Illinois statesman. But, Andy Johnson, when you ask us to swallow John Bigler, and the bummers who will hang to his skirts and eat pap with him—when you ask us to do this, our stomach revolts, and we can't. It is the last feather but a most [illegible] heavy one. We can't help resurrect the old Democrats whose graves smell worse than that of old Lazarus of old, and whose political sores the dogs would refuse to lick. Andy Johnson, we don't believe in any such kind of reconstruction—it is not the kind that will have a tendency to heal the breach between you and the people. If a change in the office of Assessor was necessary, you could have found living men enough, whose skirts were clean, without digging into the grave of political corruption for a subject. We are loth to give you up, Andy Johnson, and should we do so we will not join in the cries of "crucify," and resort to blackguardism, for we respect your office too much. We hope that you will rectify your mistakes, and as you cannot be an Andrew Jackson, make a straightforward, sober and upright President, and the people will then rally to your support. But the people do not like to see the dignity of the Chief Magistrate of the Nation lowered to political brawls on the street corners, or disgraced by calling around it the old crowd of political bummers that years ago outlived their usefulness.

THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON'S PHYSICIANS.—A Paris correspondent of a New York journal, who writes that the Emperor's health is really in a bad condition, says:

For years he has been suffering more or less with catarrh in the bladder, and it is said now to void daily a considerable quantity of blood. Diabetes is also reported to have set in. In addition to his personal friend and physician, Dr. Conneau, the Emperor now has constantly attending and consulting him the three most eminent men in the profession in Paris—Drs. Rayer, Nelaton and Ricord.

Dr. Rayer is the doyen or president of the faculty of medicine of Paris, and in that capacity may perhaps be supposed to represent all the medical learning of the city. His opinion, indeed, bears great weight from it, and he is much employed in consultation by those who can afford to pay his large fees. Nelaton is, everything considered, the most distinguished surgeon in Paris. He it was who went to Italy, and found and extracted the ball from Garibaldi's foot, and saved him from an amputation, after the Italian surgeons had declared that the ball was not there, but that amputation must take place. Ricord's reputation in his "specialty" is world-wide. His income from his profession is said to amount to about 500,000 francs, or $100,000 a year. He receives his patients every afternoon after five o'clock, and it is said that he frequently continues his receptions till two or three in the morning, and so great is the rush upon him that in order to see him at all it is necessary to procure a number, each patient awaiting his turn, as he does at an omnibus bureau. Ricord, in spite of his immense income—like Alexander Dumas, Lamartine, Daniel Webster, and other great men, living and dead—is said to be continually embarrassed and in debt, and a few years since his creditors incarcerated him for a few days in the debtor's prison at Clichy. Ricord is an American by birth, a native of Baltimore, but came to Paris when he was 19 years old. He is about 60, and wears in his button-hole the ribbon of the Legion of Honor.

Such are the Emperor's medical advisers; and the fact of its being considered necessary, in addition to his regular physician, who is a very skillful man, and in whom the Emperor has great confidence, to call in such eminent men, is perhaps in itself a strong evidence of the Emperor's bad condition.

CHANGES IN THE HABITS OF THE SOUTHERN PEOPLE.—The Richmond (Va.) Times thus comments upon the changes for the better wrought among the Southern people by the ordeal they have passed through:

There are many striking changes wrought in the habits and customs of our people by the stress of circumstances. They can no longer lead those lives of ease and idleness to which slavery was not only a temptation, but in a measure rendered almost unavoidable in the man of wealth and leisure. The village Post Office, inn, cross-roads grocery and Court-green are no longer the scenes upon which idle, dissipated men, young and old, spend the greater portion of their time. It is true that whisky is dear and greenbacks scarce; but these considerations do not explain the moral and social phenomena which we are called upon to witness. The people have changed with the times and their circumstances, and wisely realize the necessity of conforming to the necessities of their altered condition. The vapid, loud-mouthed politician is no more listened to with rapt attention and curiosity, and he has sense enough to hold his tongue where the people take so little interest in politics that he would not secure an audience. Speech-making is now voted a bore. It consumes valuable time, and the people find it difficult to discover how eloquent harangues on the hustings are at all likely to lighten taxes, or help the political situation. They have a vague suspicion that too much talking brought war and ruin upon us, and that those are the best off now who think much and say little. We dare say they are right; nor can it be denied that there is a world of philosophy in their reasonings upon this subject.

The revolution in sentiment and action to which we have alluded is confined to no particular class at the South; it pervades all classes of our white population. The changed condition of affairs, like a new pair of shoes or boots, may rub and pinch at first, but ultimately may be worn with ease and comfort. Ours is not a people to sit forever whining and repining by the banks of the stream of human progress and watch the remnant of prosperity floating off upon its surface. No, they have enough Anglo-Saxon courage and energy left to dash into the waters and rescue the fragments of whatever may be left them worth preserving.

THE DEAD SEA.—M. Jerrell, who accompanied the Duc de Luynes to Palestine in 1865, has addressed a note to the Academy on the chemical composition of the water of the Dead Sea. It has generally been considered that this lake is untenanted by living creatures, but Mr. Jerrell states that near Sodom he distinctly saw a number of small fish, seeming to thrive very well. His observations may be summed up as follows: 1. The density of the waters of the Dead Sea increase with their depth. 2. Their composition is not everywhere the same. 3. Their concentration is likewise variable. 4. Of all the salts, the bromides seem to be much more concentrated at the bottom. 5. The waters of the Dead Sea contain no iodine nor phosphoric acid. 6. Their residue, after evaporation, does not, by the spectroscope, reveal the presence of either lithine, cæsium or rubidium. They contain little sulphuric acid.

A UNION CLAIMANT.—There is an odd joker in this county, says the Humboldt (Nev.) Register, who dates his Union proclivities far back, and undertakes to clinch his claim on a very shaky foundation. Bringing his own case into review, he said, in natural frontier phrase: "I don't reckon there's many has a older and clearer record for Union principles than what I've got—I don't reckon there's many. I perspirated as freely as anybody for Fremont in 1856. It's a fact, the vote of Carson Valley was not counted, because the precinct wasn't claimed by Californy—the fust thing I ever heard of on the coast, wuth a cuss, that Californy didn't claim; but the vote was throwed out, and my efforts and suffrages was spiled; but I reckon it showed where I would have been if I'd been in a legal precinct, I reckon."

The Daily Oregonian.

SATURDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 10, 1866.

Who the True Friends of the South Are.

Prior to the elections the Confederates had a faint hope that the Johnson party would succeed, yet that hope was accompanied by gloomy anticipations of the consequences which would follow, if, as it seemed probable, failure should ensue. The Richmond Enquirer, a short time ago, gave utterance to these unhappy vaticinations:

> "There is some ground of hope that the thinking men of the North will see the importance of sustaining the President, and by their united efforts overcome the madness which seems to rule the hour there. Otherwise, may God save the country, for the success of Radicalism will only make the North a scene of wild anarchy and the South a second St. Domingo."

The Radicals are not greatly alarmed about the occurrence of the horrible scenes which the Enquirer predicts. Now that the triumph of Radicalism, so called, is complete, what can the South do but take the terms offered her? It is impossible for her to obtain terms less objectionable. The conditions prescribed are marked by a leniency such as was never before exhibited by a Government that had conquered a great rebellion. Would not the Northern Democratic press evince a true friendship for the Southern States by ceasing to fulminate against the amendment, and by counseling the South to accept it? It were madness to oppose it longer. The South may indeed reject it, but she should remember that this sort of infatuation on her part was what caused the abolition of slavery. They are no friends of the Southern States who now counsel further resistance to the terms proposed by the people who subdued the rebellion.

Entirely Inadmissible.

The following statement is made in a late dispatch from Washington to a leading journal of New York:

> It is understood that the President is employing every leisure moment he can obtain in considering and preparing the political points of his forthcoming Annual Message to Congress, on which more than usual care will be expended. It is stated by those competent to know, that some of these points have already been made the subject of Cabinet consideration. The President will adhere most strenuously to the line of policy that has characterized his administration. It is believed that he will take the ground that, while the Constitution leaves it an open question for the Courts whether ordinary legislation is or is not binding while States are refused representation, that instrument is emphatic in its requirement that, in the preparation of amendments to the Constitution, all the States that claim the right shall be represented. The President will, therefore, urge the immediate admission of the loyal and qualified Senators and Representatives from all the now unrepresented States, in order that Congress may be enabled to prepare such amendments as the present condition of the country demands. He will also recommend that when Congress is organized according to his views of the constitutional requirement, amendments be prepared adjusting the questions of representation and taxation to meet the changed condition of the country. It is probable that the President will embody in his message, as a suggestion to Congress, the two propositions for amendment submitted last winter in his reported conversation with a prominent Senator. Those propositions were somewhat mutilated in their transmission at the time, and a correct version is, therefore, sent herewith, as follows:
>
> Representatives shall be appointed among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to the number of qualified male voters as prescribed by each State.
>
> Direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to the value of all property subject to taxation in each State.

It is altogether probable that the President may seek an escape from the difficulties which beset him by taking a course like that here indicated. But it can avail him nothing. It is as utterly impracticable as any one of the many other schemes in which he has so signally failed. The constitutional amendment has been endorsed by the people of all the loyal States. To that amendment Congress will therefore adhere. It could not now abandon it if it would. Besides, the idea of proposing amendments like those the President talks of, or any other amendments whatever, in the expectation that they could receive a two-thirds vote in Congress after the Southern members are admitted, is an absurdity worthy only of the person who suggests it. The President knows that the Southern members to a man, would vote against any proposition of the kind. He knows that they would vote for no amendments except to pay the rebel debt, to secure rebel pensions, or to gain some other similar advantage. For him to make such suggestions as these is therefore not only a piece of absurdity but a piece of dishonesty.

Several times the President has stated that after the South was admitted he would recommend to Congress the adoption of amendments similar to these. But from his duplicity heretofore it is impossible to believe him sincere in this. And if he were sincere in it, the amendments he suggests could never be secured. The rebels are not going to give up willingly the great political advantage which they derive from the representation and disfranchisement of the colored population. And the moment they get into Congress they will be able to successfully resist all attempts to so amend Constitution as to do justice to the North in the matter of representation. Therefore they will not get in until this thing is settled, and until they freely accept the terms prescribed by the representatives of the loyal people. President Johnson presented his plan. It has been rejected by an overwhelming vote. It is not now his time to speak.

Wicked Ambition Rebuked.

Andrew Johnson was elected November 8th, 1864, as an uncompromising Union man, to the Vice Presidency, and was inaugurated as such on the 4th of March, 1865, amid the curses, jeers and howls of the entire Democratic party, North and South. On the 14th day of April, he was elected to the Presidency by the assassin, J. Wilkes Booth, and on the 15th he took the oath of office. During the following year, he conceived and attempted to carry into execution the idea of assassinating the glorious old party which had elevated him to the second place in the nation; the same which had preserved the Republic when assailed by traitors. Elevated to the first place by an assassin, he seemed to be thoroughly imbued with the belief that he owed a greater debt to Booth than to the people who had only set him up in the second. On the 6th day of November, 1866, less than two years from the date of his election, he was repudiated by an overwhelming majority of the Northern people to whom he had referred his quarrel with Congress and the Union party. On the 7th of November, he sat in the White House at Washington, a President without a party—a pitiable spectacle of a broken-down aspirant for Dictatorial power, as powerless to shape the domestic policy of the Government as when he was an unambitious alderman of his native village. No politician in the United States, whether an honorable aspirant or wickedly ambitious, has ever received a more thorough rebuke than has Andrew Johnson in the fall elections. We say thorough, because the issues were never more clearly understood, and the people never more earnestly meant what they said than when they voted last Tuesday.

Johnson, besides having played the characters of constable, alderman, mayor, &c., undertook to act the role of "Moses crossing the Red Sea." He proved so poor an actor in that part that the Manager has found it necessary to set him back, like a boy in his reading exercises, to "Moses in the bulrushes." Small crafts should keep near the shore.

The "humble individual" may now speak of himself as the humbled individual.

The French Failure.

Jefferson Davis and the man at the White House are not the only—though they may claim to be the greatest—failures of the present age. There are others in the same line whose names will serve both to point many a moral and adorn many a tale. Conspicuous among the failures of the time is Louis Napoleon. Ten years ago he was a power in the world. Celebrated as a far-sighted statesman and held in awe as a powerful Emperor, the destinies of the nations seemed to be in in his hands. But his factitious greatness has found its level, and his name is no more mentioned with terror or admiration. He has had his day.

Both in Europe and in America he has met a rebuff. He did not succeed in uniting the Rhenish Provinces to France, nor has Mexico become tributary to his Empire. In both these cases his failure has been humiliating. A monarch of smaller pretensions could not afford to fail so utterly. How great a fall then, for one who boasted himself the first monarch of the world.

His late august majesty got up a financial speculation by means of which he succeeded in making a show of some pretended claims on Mexico. He set out avowedly to get the money; in reality to get a foothold in that country. In the prosecution of both his real and avowed object he has failed. He has not yet collected that ten millions of dollars. Probably he will have to wait a long time yet for the money. It looks decidedly like a bad debt. He turns out to be a very poor collector. The Hapsburg puppet whom he fixed on the throne doesn't at all fancy an endless conflict with republicanism, and is going back to the country where, as yet, the divine right of the despot is unquestioned. So both the great master and the little man have failed together. To get those ten millions Napoleon has expended fifty millions, and now he gets neither his pay nor his provinces; neither his dollars nor dependencies. This is probably the last very extensive speculation in which the little nephew of his great uncle will ever engage. He may conclude in future to avoid the mortification of failure by avoiding bold schemes for empire and renown.

The standing army of Sweden, which has hitherto consisted of about 50,000 men, is to be entirely re-organized, in order to increase its effective strength. Switzerland is also about to introduce a re-organization into her army; Austria is already engaged on a similar task; and part of the French press urges the re-organization of an army which has hitherto been regarded almost as a model for that of other nations.

The Yale law students have started a new secret society called the Justinian.

Who has Changed?

It is constantly urged by President Johnson and by those who advocate his policy that the views which have come to be regarded as distinctively his are in strict accordance with the Baltimore platform of 1864. In other words, the President claims that he has not changed since his election by the people to the Vice Presidential office, and that his present action is altogether consistent not only with his own utterances during the war, but also with the principles laid down by the Republican party at its last national convocation. We do not propose to controvert this assumption at the present time, but will content ourselves with showing what is involved in it.

The popular vote for Lincoln and Johnson was about twenty-two hundred thousand. It is to be taken for granted, therefore, that in 1864 Johnson and the voters upon the Republican ticket were in full accord. He and they, at that time, accepted the same formula of political principles and were agreed upon a future policy for the party and for the country. But since then Johnson and these multitudes of Republican voters have parted company; they do not stand together as they did. Consequently, either he or they have abandoned the doctrines of 1864. He charges them with having changed; while on the other hand they insist that the change has been made by him. That there has been a change, it would be absurd to deny. What then is implied in the claim that Johnson stands precisely where he stood two years ago. Nothing more or less than this, that twenty-two hundred thousand voters have faltered, while he has continued firm. The leader has not abandoned his party, but the party has forsaken its leader; the candidate has not betrayed his supporters, but the supporters have proved false to their candidate; the individual is true, the two millions and more are faithless; the one mind and conscience have maintained their balance, the minds and consciences of an entire party—of half the loyal North—have proved unequal to the strain of the last two years. To be sure, it was beforehand as twenty-two hundred thousand to one that if a schism should occur between President Johnson and his constituency it would be the result of his action rather than of theirs; yet the President insists upon it that this overwhelming probability has been contradicted by what has actually occurred.

But in 1864 there were about eighteen hundred thousand voters in the loyal States who gave their suffrages to the opposition candidate, General McClellan. It may safely be assumed that this (in numbers) very respectable minority in the North did not then hold the same political views with Andrew Johnson, the Republican candidate for Vice President. Indeed, the opposition papers of the time might be quoted to any extent to indicate that there was anything but admiration for him personally or sympathy with his principles among those who sustained the Chicago ticket; we prefer, however, to confine ourselves to the tables. Eighteen hundred thousand electors voted against him—that is enough for the purpose of our argument. But the same newspapers to-day most unqualifiedly and eagerly approve and sustain Andrew Johnson, now President of the United States. Then there has been a change again, either on the part of the quondam candidate, now the official, or of the men who opposed his election. If he and they occupy exactly the same political relationship to each other in 1866 which existed in 1864, it follows that in 1864 the Republican and Democratic parties were in complete harmony; for it is an axiom in politics no less than in mathematics that "things which are equal to the same things are equal to one another," and we have already seen that the Republican party and its candidates were at that time fully agreed together. But this will be pronounced impossible; and the alternative remains that either Johnson or the Democratic party has made a transposition. Johnson for himself denies that any alteration has taken place in his position or principles. Admitting this to be so, the inference cannot be resisted that eighteen hundred thousand voters have come or have been brought across the wide space which separated them from the successful candidate. Beforehand, the probabilities were as eighteen hundred thousand to one that in the event of an alliance or of a fusion between him and them, he, rather than they, would have to traverse the intervening distance. Moreover, the opposition leaders and editors do not concede that they have accomplished this mighty and marvelous conversion; but all this is implied in the assumption of their newly-chosen chieftain, and they must not deny it.

Again, it would seem that a third body of voters has made a most utter divergence from its position of two years ago. We refer to the 700,000 voters, more or less, living in the Southern States, who were deprived by the civil war of the privileges of participation in the late Presidential election, but whose sympathies, unless they were greatly belied, were warmly with the opposition nominees. We think it was never claimed for this class of our fellow citizens that they were zealous for the success of the Lincoln and Johnson ticket; yet it is capable of the most abundant demonstration that these 700,000 electors, who were, in 1864, non-voters, by their own act, are now ardent adherents of the policy and measures of him against whom they then brought to bear every means of opposition available to them. Who has, in the meantime, changed? Have they, or has he? He insists that he stands just where he did. Then, strange to say, the whole strength of the Southern vote has been gained for the principles of the Baltimore Convention, and would be given in support of those principles to-day, if a hard-hearted Congress would permit.

In a word, four millions seven hundred thousand voters have, in the course of two years, abjured their political principles, while one man, unerring in his perceptions and immaculate in his convictions, has remained firm and unshaken! The Republican party has gone over en masse to the opposition; the opposition party stands squarely upon the Baltimore platform, and the disloyal Southerners have espoused the principles which required their own discomfiture and which secured their utter defeat! And this movement of millions has been secured by the immobility of a single individual! All this is true, or else it is true that President Johnson has abandoned the party which elected him, has renounced its principles and has sworn fealty to its foes. On this issue the loyal men of the United States are now passing their judgment.—Boston Journal.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO NOVEMBER 8.

Arrest—The World's Advice to Johnson.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Frank Hilton, Gold Broker, at No. 9, Wall street, was arrested to-day for an attempt to get cash upon eight coupons, of $5,000 each, advertised as stolen from Mr. Lord.

The World of this morning has a long article, saying that the unfortunate result of the election deprives Andrew Johnson of what ought to have been the chief glory of his administration, viz: the pacification of the country. Powerless during the residue of his term in all contested questions of domestic policies, his only chance of acquiring prestige is in a vigorous foreign policy. Perfectly subject to the control of Congress it would be futile for him to contest longer with the radicals in respect to the South, and he will best consult the dignity of his office by letting his action cease with his responsibility.

Cholera on Board a Steamship.

The steamship Florida, which arrived from Havana to-day, had 23 deaths on board from cholera. The Florida is chartered by the French government to bring troops from Vera Cruz, and merely touched here to land passengers, none of whom suffered from the disease.

Markets.

NEW YORK, Nov 8.—Flour—Dull; common grade 20@40 cts lower. Wheat—Dull. Corn—5@6 cts lower; quoted $3 46.

Hurdle Race.

The Jerome Park Hurdle Race to-day, one mile and three-quarters and seven hundredths, was won by Roscoe. Time, 4:16. Yellow Hammer and Surprise fell.

Fenian Prisoners not to be Executed.

TORONTO, Nov. 8.—The Leader of this morning has a significant editorial, declaring that Fenians will not be hung, but their punishment will be proportionate to their crime, with perhaps an admixture of Royal clemency. The Globe has a Montreal dispatch, saying it is understood that Government has resolved to commute the sentence of Lynch and McMahon.

Gov. Swan makes a Jubilant Speech.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 8.—Gov. Swan was called upon at his residence last night by a large body of Conservatives and made a speech, congratulating them upon the victory obtained. He said the question of the Police Commissioners would now be settled by the Courts, and whoever that Judge was would be held to a strict account for his action.

Democratic Convention for Ohio.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8.—The Ohio Democratic Committee to-day resolved to call a State Convention on the 8th of January for the nomination of a candidate for Governor and other officers.

Details of Election News.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Returns from sixty-two counties in Illinois, give Logan 44,000 majority—a gain of 15,000 over Lincoln's vote two years ago. Logan's majority in Lake county, including Chicago, is 9,545. Cairo district gives Rawn, Republican, 500 majority. Belleville district gives Baker, Republican, over 1,200 majority. Springfield district gives Cullom, Republican, 4,000. Quincy district gives Harding, Republican, 2,700. The 9th district elects Lippincott—a Republican gain—and the 11th district is in doubt. The Illinois Senate stands 16 Republicans and 9 Democrats. The House 60 Republicans to 26 Democrats. No other State, this year, has shown such uniform and surprising gains.

The following are the Congressional majorities in Michigan—all Republicans: Beaman 4,500, Upson 6,300, Blair 9,900, Terry 7,000, Trowbridge 2,300 and Driggs 6,500. Total Republican majority 31,000. The Legislature is nearly unanimous.

The State of Minnesota, in the 1st district, gives Winslow over 60,000 majority. The 2d district gives Donnelly 3,600 majority.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 9.—The 1st district official returns give General Pile, Republican, 170 majority over Hogan. The 2d district, Newcomb, Republican, 3,000. The 3d district is very close. Noell, Conservative, is probably elected. The 4th district, Gravelly, Republican, 4,500. 5th district, McClurg, Republican, 4,000. 6th district Van Horn, Republican, 500. 7th district, Ben. Loan, Republican, 8,000. 8th district, Benjamin, Republican, 2,000. The 9th district is close, but Anderson, Republican, is probably elected.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Strenuous efforts are making to remove Commissioner Rollins, of the Internal Revenue Bureau, and appoint Thos. Spencer, of Cincinnati, but it is understood Mr. McCulloch opposes the change.

Financial Matters.

The receipts of customs in gold average one million weekly.

The British Government has renewed its proposition for a mixed commission to arbitrate the Alabama claims.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The drain of currency is rather toward than from New York, and the fact that the banks in this city are willing to allow $25,000,000 of legal tenders which have ceased to bear interest to remain to their credit in the sub-treasury, is most conclusive evidence that they have more money than they can lend.

Gen. Sherman—Mexican Affairs.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Gen. Sherman arrived here last night, and the frigate Susquehannah lies anchored off the battery awaiting the departure of our distinguished envoys.

A correspondent who left the city of Mexico on the 22d ult. and Vera Cruz on the 26th, says Gen. Castelneau arrived at the capital on Sunday night. Everything was afloat there, and all awaiting developments, with all sorts of rumors as to what the new policy will be. The whole country is infested with guerrillas, professedly Liberals, but really bandits, who are using these unsettled times for personal plunder.

NEWS BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Consols 88¾; 5-20's 69. The drafts of Dent & Co., of China, have been refused acceptance. Their engagements are heavy.

The case of the rebel steamers seized at Liverpool, which was brought before the Admiralty Court, has been adjusted.

VENICE, Nov. 8.—The King of Italy entered Venice with great pomp yesterday.

PARIS, Nov. 8.—Transports are ready to bring the French troops from Mexico.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9.—Charles H. Brickwedel and Charles Herman, proprietors of the Yreka Restaurant, on Sansome street, have filed their petitions in insolvency. Their losses occurred in the regular order of business. Brickwedel's liabilities amount to $5,310 60, and Herman's to $1,199 60. Neither of them have any assets.

Jacob Levy filed his petition. Levy has been engaged in the retail clothing business.

The retail dealers held another meeting last evening, when the committee appointed at a previous meeting reported that all but two of the wholesale dry goods dealers, one fancy goods dealer and four wholesale grocers, had pledged themselves not to sell goods at retail. The retail dealers express a determination to patronize only those who agree not to interfere with their business by selling at retail.

Another attempt was made last evening to burn the building on north-east corner of Sansome and California streets. The fire was kindled in a room over that occupied by the Occidental and Vanguard newspaper, but was extinguished with but little damage. This is the third attempt to fire these premises within a year.

Peter Vincent and Elizabeth, his wife, have commenced suit in the 15th District Court, to recover $10,000 damages from Adam Menges and Louisa, his wife, for the use of slanderous words by Mrs. Menges, reflecting on the character of Mrs. Vincent.

The jury in the case of Agnes Hines charged with robbing an old gentleman of $1,400 in a house on Pike street, were out all night and at ten o'clock this morning were discharged, they being unable to agree on a verdict.

T. Davenport, an insolvent debtor, was discharged from his liabilities to-day by a decree of the county court.

Flour—Superfine, hf sks, ℘ 196 lbs $5 75@6; qr sks, $6@6 25; extra, hf sks, $6 50, qr sks $6 50@6 75.

The wheat market is rather quiet; parties waiting to realize from the steamer are content with moderate offers. During the last few days about 160,000 sacks have been purchased in the interior for this market.

The barley market shows little improvement. Choice brewing, 97½c, old brewing, $1 ℘ 100 lbs.

Oats—Some inquiry with small sales at $1 35@1 45 ℘ 100 lbs for light to good.

Potatoes—Sweet, quoted at $1@1 10.

Gold—Legal Tender.

Gold was quoted at 146¼ in New York yesterday. Sterling, 109@109¼. Rates of exchange for to-morrow's steamer are the same. Legal Tenders are 70¼c buying, 70¾ selling.

Shipping.

Arrived—Nov. 8, whaling bark Emulator, 25 days from Ochotsk Sea; brig Hugh Barclay, 21 days from Port Ludlow; brig Hattie Jackson, 22 days from Petropauloski.

Sailed—Nov. 8, steamer Continental, Mazatlan.

The New York World advises the President to cease his opposition to Congress. Not so with the more powerful Oregon Herald. It exhorts him not to succumb, and to frighten his adversaries, talks of "bayonets." The Herald man evidently thinks that his warlike counsels will prevail over the timid advice of the spiritless fellow of the World.

The New York Herald not long ago urged the President to join the Radicals so that he might defeat them. Lucky thing for the Radicals that Johnson did not take this advice. The most effectual way to defeat the constitutional amendment would have been for Johnson to advocate its adoption. Bennett is exceedingly cunning.

GRAEFENBERG
Uterine Catholicon,

IF USED AS DIRECTED, WILL CURE DIABETES, and greatly mitigate the troublesome effects caused by a relaxation of the outlet of the bladder. It is a successful remedy for Gravel and Diseases of the Kidney and Bladder, and for Female Diseases is unequalled. The CATHOLICON uniformly cures Prolapsus Uteri, Whites, all Irregularities of the Monthly Turns, Suppression, Incontinence of Urine, Bloating and Dropsical Swellings, and all Diseases of Pregnancy. The specific action of this medicine is immediate and certain upon the Uterine and Abdominal Muscles and Ligaments; restoring them to the healthy state of childhood and youth, so that patients who use the GRAEFENBERG UTERINE CATHOLICON cannot sufficiently express their gratitude.
